A message from Siki Jo-An

"In 2024, I took a break from teaching to return to being a full-time artist. I was fortunate to perform on a world cruise, singing across New Zealand, Australia, Asia, and North America. I've just completed that contract, and it feels incredible to be home in South Africa again.

I'm well-rested and truly excited to be going on tour. I've learned so much during my travels. My musical repertoire has expanded dramatically and I can't wait for my supporters to hear and see me on stage again.

I'm proud to say that I have successfully self-funded both my local and international tours over the past two years. Now, I'm delighted to announce that my 2025 South African Tour is supported by the Concerts SA Mobility Fund. This opportunity has elevated the tour to new heights.

I look forward to reconnecting with returning audiences and meeting new supporters along the way."

In October 2025, the African Queen will extend her tour to other countries across Africa, followed by a journey to South America in November, where she will perform during Black History Month in Brazil. Official dates and venues will be announced soon.
